ZELDA

"Vitality is not inventing something new, but taking old ideas and giving them a life that was lost".

Zelda Sayre Fitzgerald, in an article which appeared in "McCall's" magazine in 1925

Devon&Devon

CREATED IN FLORENCE. INSPIRED BY THE WORLD.

A homage to unconventional femininity and the irresistible charisma of the author's wife and muse of "The Great Gatsby". ZELDA is a vanity table which revisits the classic bedroom dresser in a contemporary key and enhances the offer of Devon&Devon collections dedicated to home and self-care.

The dresser frame is defined by the sinuous lines of tops and side doors, by the rounded shapes of the semicircular handles which close with a circle and by the round circumference of the big central mirror having a diameter of 1 metre.

The thin and slender legs of the table are made of natural brass, the same material used for the profiles (that are rounded as well) which gently accompany the curvatures of the tops, doors and encircle the diamond mirror and the base of the velvet footstool.

The counter top is in cremo-extra marble with bright pale-yellow veins.

Under the main top, between the two drawers (one of which is a ring holder) there is a pull-out top covered with velvet.

French-polished doors and drawers are available in three versions:

the first is made of an intense powder pink with tones of mauve, this is a shade of colour that Zelda Fitzgerald loved and which she frequently described in her stories; the second consists of a cream white that emphasizes the formal purity of the vanity table, enhancing the high contrast with the golden light of the brass elements; the third is characterised by a thin two-tone zig-zag pattern inspired by Art Deco, with fragmented and irregular lines that recall the materiality of twill fabrics.

All colours can be customized upon request.

Materials:

body in lacquered wood, it is glossy for the pink and white versions and matt for the zig-zag one;
profiles, handles, knobs, legs and edges of the mirror and the footstool are made of natural brass;
velvet footstool and internal covering of the drawers and pull-out top;
tops in cremo-extra marble;
diamond mirror

Sizes:

Width: 155 cm max
Seat opening: 70 cm
Max depth: 45 cm
